ECL - a reliable provider of computer help and support in Essex

About Us

We believe our longevity and continued success in a fickle industry is down to two main factors. Firstly, ECL has retained its independence and is still owned and managed by the same three directors who established the firm back in 1993 and who between them have over 60 years experience in the IT arena. Secondly, we have a loyal customer base built on our commitment to providing old-fashioned attention to detail in a highly modern, technical and challenging marketplace.

Our independence allows us to offer our clients a genuine choice when it comes to planning the future of their IT infrastructures. Whilst acknowledging Microsoft's excellent range of networking and desktop solutions, we are quite possibly the only established IT service provider in South East Essex who can provide and support networks driven not only by Microsoft products such as Windows 2003 Server, Exchange Server and ISA Server, but also Novell Netware and related products such as Groupwise, as well as LINUX. For more information see the 'Network Platforms' page.

As part of our continued commitment to developing and improving ECL, the company purchased and moved to new premises on the Wickford Business Park in early 2005. Our new home has provided us with the perfect stable environment to further grow the company and develop the services we can offer our clients.

The ECL Team

ECL employs a dedicated team of experienced, highly trained and dedicated IT technicians. We look for certain qualities in our technicians over and above pure technical expertise. IT is an imperfect science and with the best will in the world things don't always go exactly to plan. Right from the interview stage, we look for the kind of people who are calm under pressure, and who are able to think on their feet when a fresh approach is needed and time is critical.

We understand that technical expertise alone is not enough in today's demanding business environment.

Our experienced Account Managers are always on-hand to discuss your requirements, help you plan your on-going IT strategy, provide quotations, answer questions, and be the plain-speaking interface between you and our technical staff.
